Nearly all of today's homebuyers begin—and continue—their search for property online. When you partner with Realty World, our National Listing Distribution program places your listing in front of a huge number of potential buyers. But we don't stop there: we also feature your property on Yahoo.com, Zillow.com and Trulia.com—three of the top-four-visited real estate portals. You get up to five times more buyer exposure with us. And this traffic report shows you exactly which sites are providing your listing with the most exposure.

This report is valuable because it lists only interested buyers—buyers who are attracted to your property. They took the time to click through and get more information about it. That's important because over time an increase or decrease in activity from these buyers can help you and I make informed decisions on how your property is marketed and priced. It's just one more way Realty World utilizes advanced technology to help you reach your goals.
